

Sparta Trophy for Enfield & Haringey Walkers

I understand that EHAC has won the Race Walking Association's Sparta Trophy for the most improved club in 2007. This award reflects the tireless work that Martin Oliver has done to transform the ailing walking section of the Enfield Harriers (as it was then) a decade ago, to the vibrant entity that it is now. I sure that all connected with the club and the league share my hope that Martin will be available to receive the award on behalf of the club, when the presentation is eventually made.

Enfield League 2007 – Race Eleven 5 km

Queen Elizabeth Stadium 13th October

Fifty-two walkers including the UK, European and World L70 champion Maureen Spelman with fellow Masters World championship medallists Doug Fotheringham (silver) and Harvey Jaquest (Team bronze), along with John Cannell (1970 IoM Commonwealth Games Representative) plus newcomers Helen Middleton, Kasha Lehmann and Ivor Groves faced the starter in warm sunny weather. The race which incorporated the Southern Vets and Vets AC 5km championships produced some really competitive walking, which is reflected in the result set out below.

Thanks to Mike Hinton for his article which appears on the next page and to Ken Easlea and Ray Middleton for their correspondence and support for EHAC and the League. I'll certainly be keeping in touch with them and hope that perhaps we might see them at some time.

THE OPEN SEVEN MILES and some Debut Memories

My first experience of taking part in Open 7 miles was the 'Enfield Open' in 1957, 50 years ago, having been introduced to the sport of Race Walking that summer, aged sixteen.

At that time there were five Open 7's, starting with 'Highgate' in October, 'Enfield' and 'Belgrave' both in November, followed by the 'Cambridge' in December and the 'Met.Police' in January. All these events required entries in advance and certainly none were accepted on the day, as fields could number as many as two hundred. The cost of entry was most probably the equivalent of 15p, and a programme listing the entries was given to competitors as they collected their numbers.

When filling in your entry form, your latest time for the distance was required for a handicap mark which appeared next to your name on the programme. In those days it was four to score in a team which had to be declared prior to the start of the race. You could name up to eight walkers and some clubs had as many as four teams taking part, so you can imagine the amount walkers taking part. Invariably there were awards for the scratch team, and also the best handicap team.

Most of the country's leading walkers would take part in these 'Open 7's', as they were very popular and the highlight of the Winter Racing Calendar' The 'Enfield' and 'Met.Police' were reckoned as the fastest, being flat courses. 'Highgate' and 'Belgrave' were considered the toughest, because of the hills, the 'Cambridge' falling somewhere in the middle. The Highgate start was actually up Westgate Hill and the Belgrave course was always considered slightly over-distance.

We suffered some cold winters back then, and I can still recall the smell of wintergreen and other pungent oil's being slapped on in the changing area, amongst the two hundred or so bodies, I encountered at Enfield that November half a century ago.

It's hard to think now, but no women were allowed in these events in those days and although there would have been a few Veterans in the field, nowhere near as many as you find today, but strikingly there were many more juniors.

It's amazing to think that the start was in Enfield High Street, with the traffic, including trolley buses held up while the Walkers lined up across the road. I remember the course went out along the Ridgeway and turned a little way past the water tower, in the middle of the road at the half waypoint, which would be impossible today. Whilst still on the way out most walkers would see the top walkers coming towards them on their way back. Over years the likes of Stan Vickers, Ken Matthews, Don Thompson and all the big names took part and the big name that won it in my 1957 Enfield debut, which had 179 starters was Eric Hall in 51.28. It is great to see that Eric still turns out occasionally in the league.

The 'Highgate' and 'Cambridge' have long gone, and seems that we have seen the last of the 'Met.Police' event, so that just leaves the 'Enfield' and 'Belgrave' sevens, to soldier on. Both have seen changes in their courses over the years due to increased traffic and other problems, but are managing to stick it out.

I have always wondered why 7 miles it's such an odd number, perhaps someone can answer that. Anyway lets give these two that remain our support to carry the '7' tradition on. ,

Regards

Mike Hinton

Have I Been Getting It Right? asks Jon May. Jon would like to hear from anyone who thinks that they have spotted an error in the statistics he produces. He is eager to ensure accuracy and welcomes any input that assists him achieve this. It would be helpful if such observations could be written down and handed to him at any of the walks he attends.

Oops! Sorry in the Peter Emery "Spotlight" that appeared in the last issue, I reported that Peter qualified as a Centurion in the Leicester Hundred of 1982. This isn't true and I apologize for the error which was entirely my fault. An eagle-eyed reader spotted the error and brought it to my attention. Peter qualified in the Bristol Hundred of 1977.

RWA Centenary Dinner – A few personal thoughts

This historic celebratory event has been well covered in other journals. What I can report is that Enfield & Haringey were well represented. Not only did we have a table, but the principal speaker was our Club President Peter Matthews. The speeches from Peter Cassidy, Peter Markham, Paul Nihill, our President, the introductions by MC Dave Ainsworth and the large helping of nostalgia that this type of event evokes made the £25 cost of a ticket an absolute bargain. It was a really good night out and the organisers deserve great credit for the work they did to bring it about.

Successful as the evening was, on later reflection I couldn't help but think it a little disappointing that there were only fifty-one attendees. I'm sure that the central London venue made it difficult for many to get there and more importantly get home afterwards and then again, many people just don't attend this type of function. Nevertheless, all the areas were represented and I thought that the large southern presence was perhaps appropriate, because it was after all, the Southern Area RWA that was formed in 1907, the national body following later.

There were officials there who have had connections with race walking for most of their lives, which constitutes over half the life of the Association and whilst the past was well represented by a number of ex-national champions and international walkers, the absence of any of today's internationals or staff from UK Athletics, struck me as being a not too promising omen, drawing attention to the gap that I perceive, between those taking part in an event called race walking and those involved in a sport called race walking. The work of bringing the event and the sport to interact with each other in more harmony than they presently do, is (again in my opinion) the major task facing the previously mentioned officials, if race walking is to regain its once highly respected image within athletics and equally important, with the public.

On a brighter note, Enfield regulars on our table were delighted that Adrian James was able to make it to the dinner and although his health hasn't been too great over the past year, he still exuded the same enthusiasm about walking that took him to the top bracket of British walking in the late seventies and early eighties. I'll be surprised if we don't see him at QE stadium soon.

Enfield League Tables

With just two races to go, things continue to hot up, especially in the team table as Ilford close Enfield's lead to 48 points, Surrey draw level with the Enfield "B" squad and Castle point move up again in their bid to make the first three.

On the face of things, the top three ladies look secure, but points gained from Chelsea's last performance puts Sue and Diana under pressure and she does have races in hand on four of the five places above her. Note the cluster of ladies between seventh and eleventh positions, covered by a mere nineteen points.

Phil and Steve, barring mishaps look beyond reach, but the third spot looks tight with just twenty-one points the difference between Steve U in sixth and Dave in third, although Phil Barnard's present form suggests that he is favourite to emerge to complete the frame. Time will tell.
